

We don't take lightly our responsibility of protecting your privacy.

Lindsborg Sesquicentennial Festival, Inc., operator of www.lindsborg150th.com, is committed to ensuring your privacy is protected as a user of this website. Be assured we will not sell, rent, or give to outside third parties personal information which you have submitted to our website.

Do we collect your data? We only request and use your data - including your name, address, telephone number and email address - for any or all of the following circumstances: event registrations, order fulfillment and receipts, donation confirmations and receipts, to contact you with questions related to your registrations, orders, or donations, to reply to communication from our Contact Us form, or to comply with law enforcement requirements. We do not collect your personal information from outside sources. We only use the data you have submitted to us via personal contact, this website, email, Facebook, or other electronic means.

We do have to transfer your personal information to certain business partners only for the purpose of processing your donations, orders, and/or fulfilling email subscriptions to which you have subscribed. This includes our debit/credit card processing company and email subscription service partners. We do not store your financial information.

You have the right at any time to ask us what personal information of yours we have, if any. Should you desire to have your information revised or removed, you have the right to request this at any time.

If you have questions or concerns regarding all aspects of this privacy policy, you may contact us by emailing lindsborg150@gmail.com.

Use of this site signifies your agreement of this Privacy Policy.
